Support charities of your choice during the Team Bell Giving Campaign

The 2021 Team Bell Giving Campaign runs from November 8 to 26. We invite you to join team members and retirees from across the country and help us give back to communities.

The COVID-19 crisis has been difficult for everyone, but for those in need – and the charities that support them – it's been especially challenging. Through the Team Bell Giving Campaign, you can donate to charities of your choice by credit card or deductions from your pension payments.

How to donate

Access the online giving tool at Bell.benevity.org to make your donations. If you need a login name and password to access the tool, please email giving@bell.ca for assistance or call the Giving Program team at 1-866-670-8800.

If you are already participating in the Bell Giving program with deductions from your pension payments, your donations will automatically renew for 2022 unless you contact the Giving Program team at giving@bell.ca or make a change directly in the online tool.

Track your volunteer hours

If you give back to your community by volunteering, you can track your volunteer time and earn digital badges using the Bell.benevity.org tool. By doing so, you'll have a chance to win $100 to donate to the charity of your choice. Volunteer time can be logged going back to January 1, 2021.

Apply for a volunteer team grant

Bell is offering team grants of $1,000 to support your preferred registered Canadian charities.

To be eligible, your team must have 3 or more Bell retirees and/or team members who have registered a combined 30 volunteer hours for the same organization in the online giving tool. You can be part of 3 different team grant applications per calendar year.

Every action counts

Some advantages to donating through the Team Bell Giving Campaign include:

- Donations from pension payments are automatically included on your tax forms at year-end. Tax receipts for donations made by credit card can be downloaded easily from the online giving tool.
- You can give to any registered charity for as little as $1 per pension payment.
- You can access the online giving tool at any time throughout the year to make changes to your donations.

+ To apply, complete the online application before December 15 at Bell.ca/teamgrant or contact the Giving Program Team at 1-866-670-8800.

Podcast on mental health in BIPOC communities

The new Bell Let's Talk podcast From Where We Stand: Conversations on Race and Mental Health highlights the experience of Black, Indigenous and People of Colour (BIPOC) communities. Launched by Bell Let's Talk and iHeartRadio, the podcast brings in BIPOC mental health professionals so we can better understand the impact of life experience on mental health and the support available. You can subscribe to the podcast on iHeartRadio and other major podcasting platforms.

New app from Strongest Families Institute

Bell Let's Talk supported the Strongest Families Institute (SFI) in launching a secure mobile app that expands services for clients in remote communities by providing mental health coaching and resources for families in need of mental health support.

SFI expects the app will enable them to reach an additional 13,000 Canadians over the next 15 months, helping to meet the increased demand for mental health support due to the COVID-19 crisis. Bell Let's Talk support for the project was part of the $5 million in urgent funding provided to 5 frontline organizations in March 2020.

Bell Let's Talk Day 2022 is January 26

On Wednesday, January 26, Canadians and people everywhere are invited to help make the world's largest conversation on mental health even bigger. As in past years, Bell will donate an additional 5 cents to Canadian mental health initiatives for every eligible call, text message and social media interaction throughout the day.

Bell Let's Talk Day 2021 set new records for engagement with 159,173,435 messages of support driving nearly $8 million more in Bell donations for mental health. With more than $121 million in Bell Let's Talk funding committed so far, we're on track to exceed our target of Bell contributing $155 million to Canadian mental health programs by 2025.

Your pension

FINAL REMINDER: Pension entitlement certification

To ensure pension benefits are made to the right people, Bell asks a select group of pensioners to validate their personal information by completing an annual pension audit each year in May.

If you received a reminder dated September 24, 2021 asking you to complete the 2021 audit, please respond as soon as possible to ensure continuous payment of your pension for the coming months.

Please note that you can do it online by visiting Bell.ca/mybenefits and click on Pensioner Audit tool in the third bullet point under the section "How to login". Your password has been provided in the audit letter and reminders.

+ If you need help accessing the online tool, please contact the Benefits Administrator at 1-888-400-0661, Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. eastern time.

Your retiree card available on the Benefits site

To help you take advantage of discounts and offers with our participating retailers and business partners, a retiree ID card with your name, employee number, and retirement date is now available.

Select Bell retiree card from under the Quick links tab on the Benefits site (Bell.ca/mybenefits) to print your card.

New members on Pension Information Committee

Michael James Peacocke and Bernard Barbeau to represent Bell pensioners

Bell's Pension Information Committee (PIC) works with our Finance and HR teams to provide retirees and team members with clear information about financial and administrative aspects of the Bell Canada Pension Plan.

Following nominations earlier this summer, the following pensioners will join the committee to represent Bell pensioners starting in January 2022:

- Ontario and Western Canada
Michael James Peacocke
(substitute: Mary Lynne Forestell)
- Québec and Atlantic Canada
Bernard Barbeau
(substitute: Alain Bourdon)

The committee also includes members elected by Bell managers and appointed by Unifor. The Pension Information Committee was established in 1988 to ensure Bell Canada Pension Plan members can obtain access to clear information about the financial, actuarial and administrative aspects of the plan.

+ For more information, please see the full 2021 PIC report at <https://bce.ca/assets/in-touch/november-2021/PIC-report-2021-en.pdf>.

Plan B monthly health care premiums to increase January 1

If you are currently paying for Bell's Plan B health care program for your dependents, please note that the monthly premium will increase by $1.25 to $43.75, effective January 1, 2022.

The next premium review will take place January 1, 2023 and will continue each year in January going forward. Any required changes will be noted on your annual pension and benefits retiree statement.

Your taxable benefits and pension income will be adjusted accordingly.

Helping keep costs down

Prescription drugs represent the largest costs to the health plan. You can help keep costs down and minimize future premium increases by discussing the lowest-cost treatment options with your medical practitioner and pharmacist.

Submit your benefits claims online

For enhanced speed and convenience, all claims can be submitted online through the Manulife plan member website at www.manulife.ca/signin. Once your account is set up, notifications will be sent by email and your claim will be paid directly into your bank account within 1 to 5 business days.

+ If you have any questions, please contact Manulife at 1-800-268-6195.

A voice for retirees

Created 25 years ago by Bell retirees, the Bell Pensioners' Group (BPG) is a not-for-profit organization dedicated to the interests of Defined Benefit (DB) pension holders and their postretirement benefits (as applicable).

BPG closely monitors developments in pension legislation and regulations across Canada and actively participates in policy debates that might affect members.

Why join BPG?

BPG is recognized within the pension stakeholder community and with various levels of government as a well-informed and credible advocate for DB pensioners.

As a BPG member, you will enjoy access to a wealth of information in our newsletters, on the BPG website and Facebook page, and at meetings organized by chapters in Ontario, Québec and Atlantic Canada.

The BPG relies on more than 100 volunteers to support its national board and 7 local chapters by participating on committees or helping with administration.

Not yet a member? Please visit bellpensionersgroup.ca to register online or contact one of the chapters. There is a $20 annual membership fee.

Membership extended

BPG is pleased to redistribute the equivalent of one year dues to all actual members in good standing for 2021, automatically extending their membership for one year. All new members joining in 2022 will get their membership extended as well.

Annual General Meetings

To ensure members stay safe during COVID-19, BPG held chapter Annual General Meetings (AGMs) virtually via Zoom in May and June. The AGM presentations including an overview of the Bell Pension Plan are available at bellpensionersgroup.ca.

+ Watch for meeting times and agendas at bellpensionersgroup.ca, and review the latest BPG newsletters available on the BPG website for additional details.

Retiree life

The desire to share

Nothing stops Rachel Berthiaume from helping those most in need.

Bell retiree Rachel Berthiaume has been volunteering with the Centre amitié de solidarité internationale de la région des Appalaches (CASIRA) since the mid-2000s. Based in Thetford Mines, a suburb of Québec City, this international charitable organization has been providing humanitarian aid to developing countries for more than 40 years.

Working in developing nations

Working with the CASIRA, Rachel has been to Africa, Central America and Asia lending support to non-government organizations such as schools, health care centres, orphanages and daycares. “I have participated in 12 missions in various countries, including Guatemala, Madagascar and Myanmar,” says Rachel. “It could involve doing all kinds of work or contributing to key projects.”

Rachel is working on the construction of a wall surrounding a dispensary and school for young girls in Madagascar.

The Québec resident clearly remembers her first mission in Guatemala in 2006. “I arrived in Guatemala City without knowing a word of Spanish. I had to quickly find a way to make myself understood, as I had to supervise the work of 7 people who spoke only Spanish.”

The mission she carried out in Madagascar deeply moved her, because of the extreme poverty. “Upon returning home, I reflected on it for days. It was hard for me to live in such abundance after an experience like that.”

Rachel holds a Malagasy child during a mission in Madagascar.

Providing support from home

CASIRA also ships about 10 containers of personal items to disadvantaged people Guatemala and Paraguay, including dishes, pots, utensils, toys, clothing and shoes. “We get our supplies from recycling depots that send us their surplus. We also work with the Réno-Jouets organization, which refurbishes toys.”

Items are meticulously sorted at the CASIRA warehouse in Saint-Romuald with 250 large bags and 550 boxes packed into each container, along other items such as small furniture and bicycles.

COVID-19, of course, put a damper on things, but the team was able to adapt and continue. “Humanitarian missions are suspended until further notice, but we are still sending containers,” explains Rachel, who devotes between 15 and 20 hours to CASIRA each week. “We installed Plexiglas screens in the warehouse to make sure our volunteers are safe.”

Give in Order to Receive

Also a volunteer at the Maison Michel-Sarrazin, which provides end-of-life care, Rachel says volunteering enriches her life. “In reality, disadvantaged people and those at the end of their lives teach me how to live. We often believe that disadvantaged people must be unhappy, but that is not the case. However, it is shocking for those of us living in abundance to see how some people have difficulty accessing items as basic as utensils.”

Jean de Grandpré turns 100 years old

Jean de Grandpré, former chief executive, turned 100 years old on September 14. To mark the occasion, Bell's current CEO Mirko Bibic awarded Mr. de Grandpré an honorary Bell Bravo award.

Joining Bell in 1966 as General Counsel, Mr. de Grandpré held progressively senior leadership positions at the company and became CEO and Chair of the Board in 1976, playing a key role in the creation of BCE in 1983. He guided Bell through a transformative period in our history that included the launch of mobile phone services, the introduction of fibre optics technology and the rise of personal computers.

Renowned for his mentorship of future Bell leaders, Mr. de Grandpré often said "It is the people that make the company." He is a Companion of the Order of Canada, Chancellor Emeritus of McGill University, a lifetime member of the Canadian Bar Association and a member of the Bar of Québec. His biography, L'héritage d'un géant, was published in 2019.

History and archives

This collection of vintage Bell print advertisements covers the years between 1914 and 1918, highlighting the evolution of Bell during the First World War and our technological advancements that were revolutionizing the way Canadians connected with each other and the world.

Print advertisements from the period highlight the “Pull-together” Spirit of the Bell team.

It offers helpful tips on telephone technology and etiquette (including tips on how to graciously end a “telephone talk”).

These ads tell subscribers how to take care of their phone.

1918 marked the end of WWI but is also remembered for the Spanish Influenza epidemic that began that year. As always, Bell team members rose to the challenge, with many working beyond their normal duties to keep up with the increased demand for our services and to relieve fellow workers who were ill.
